

LIBERAL ARTS

Throughout its rich history the liberal arts tradition has emphasized the acquisition of general knowledge and the development of rational thought and intellectual capacity.

This Honours program stresses the interrelationship of various disciplines, including art, literature, philosophy, politics, history and mathematics. It explores the common concepts and issues underlying the various branches of human knowledge. Competencies have been developed that encourage students to become successful learners, while also preparing them for a variety of university level programs.

The program is a small one where students and teachers form a community. Teachers commit themselves not only to their particular courses but also to the integration of their courses into the program as a whole. In addition, extra-curricular activities enhance the shared pursuit of cultural development.

What can I do after I graduate with a DEC in Liberal Arts?

University studies in areas such as law, education, psychology, political science, English, journalism, sociology, anthropology, philosophy, history, fine arts, communications, commerce, and many others.
